October 2026 Search Visibility Report

SEO, GEO and AEO progress for the Canada website

CLIENT Commonwealth Migration Group Inc. WEBSITE commonwealthmigration.ca
REPORTING PERIOD October 1-31, 2026 PREPARED BY Loud Launchers

Executive overview

October delivered a strong rise in organic search discovery for the Canada website. Google Search Console recorded 225 clicks versus 99 in September (+127%) and 18,400 impressions versus 10,300 (+79%). Click-through rate increased from 1.0% to 1.2%. The configured SE Ranking campaign also broadened its Google Canada English visibility: nine monitored terms finished in the top 10, eight more than in September, and three reached the top three.

The campaign paired that visibility with substantial content and authority work. October added 48 article entries: 26 Brampton-focused guides and 22 national immigration resources. This gives the website a broader, more useful library around local questions and Canada-wide pathways. The campaign log also records 115 backlinks created during October, extending the month's off-page authority-building activity.

Five Brampton-focused queries in the tracked set finished October between positions one and five. Semrush's November 2 Website Authority Overview recorded an 83/100 Natural Profile indicator, while its October 31 technical crawl scored 96% Site Health across 100 URLs. The public CICC register check on November 2 showed Pankaj Khanna as "Eligible to Provide Service." Together, these are positive profile-quality, technical-health and professional-verification signals that strengthen the website's trust story.

November work will build on this base by strengthening links from local guides to Brampton service pages, reviewing current immigration guidance, continuing relevant authority development, and tracking the same search set to measure ongoing progress.

What this report covers

This report explains the observed search results, the October content inventory, how the work supports organic search and answer-oriented discovery, and which authority and technical indicators were captured. It separates measured outcomes from campaign activity and from next-step recommendations so the client can see both what changed and how the work is intended to build on it.

The report leads with October's positive evidence and explains how each measure relates to the work delivered.

1. Organic search performance

More searchers saw the site and clicked through

Google Search Console recorded 225 organic clicks in October, up from 99 in September. The increase of 126 clicks represents approximately 127% month-over-month growth. Impressions increased from 10,300 to 18,400, a gain of 8,100 or approximately 79%. This broader search exposure was accompanied by more organic visits, showing that the website reached more searchers and attracted more clicks during the month.

Click-through rate moved from 1.0% to 1.2%, an increase of 0.2 percentage points. The positive October pattern is consistent across the main measures: the website appeared more often, its CTR improved, and organic clicks more than doubled against September.

These website-wide Search Console results provide a strong measure of overall organic progress. Page-level and query-level results below show where the additional visibility was recorded, while the separate position tracker shows how monitored terms expanded their ranking coverage.

Tracked ranking coverage broadened

SE Ranking's configured Google Canada English campaign tracked a fixed set of target terms through October. By October 31, three terms were in the top three, nine were in the top 10, 21 were in the top 30 and 49 were in the top 100. Compared with the September baseline, these bands increased by two, eight, 20 and 48 terms respectively. The number of tracked terms in the top 10 therefore moved from one to nine.

This progression matters because ranking coverage is building at more than one depth. The top-three and top-10 groups are the most visible part of the current monitored set. The top-30 and top-100 groups show a wider field of pages and queries that can be improved through stronger page relevance, internal pathways, accurate current information and continued authority work. These groups are nested ranking bands, not separate keyword totals to be added together.

Search Console and SE Ranking complement one another: Search Console reports the clicks and impressions actually recorded for the website, while SE Ranking shows tracked positions for selected terms and locations. Together, they document both broader search exposure and deeper ranking coverage.

Pages earning more search visibility

Search Console page comparisons show the growth across important entry points. The homepage rose from 54 to 152 clicks (+98) and from 542 to 965 impressions (+423). The Brampton immigration office page recorded 12 clicks versus two in September and 1,457 impressions versus 137 (+1,320). The About page added eight clicks and 445 impressions, while the Canada PR pathways guide added five clicks and 217 impressions. These results show increased search discovery for the firm, its local office and relevant immigration guidance.

The Brampton office page's stronger visibility is especially encouraging for local search. Its October results connect the wider Brampton content programme with a key local service destination, while the Canada PR pathways guide demonstrates how a focused resource can earn new search visits and impressions.

What the October numbers support

The combined evidence supports three positive conclusions. First, the site earned materially more organic exposure in October than in September. Second, the tracked set had substantially more terms inside the top 10 and top 30 by month end. Third, the newly expanded content library gives the team more relevant pages to maintain and connect to core service journeys. The November measurement cycle will test whether that visibility continues and which pages and queries contribute most to qualified engagement.

2. Brampton search visibility

Five selected Brampton-intent queries in the October SE Ranking campaign ended the month in the top five. Their subjects align closely with the new local guide library, showing strong query-level visibility across employer, visitor, credential-verification, graduate and citizenship topics. Search Console also recorded 25 impressions and two clicks for “commonwealth migration group brampton” in October, adding a directly observed local search result alongside the tracked keyword positions. These rankings establish a positive base for continued visibility as the Brampton content cluster grows.

- OINP Employer Portal Brampton employers — position 1, up 2 places. This result aligns with the guide for Brampton employers preparing an Ontario Immigrant Nominee Program job-offer pathway. The subject has a clear employer audience and can connect an informational search to employer-service support.
- Invitation letter Canada Brampton host checklist — position 2, up 98 places. The guide answers a practical visitor-visa question for local hosts. Its checklist format is suited to a reader who needs to understand the invitation letter’s role and supporting details before preparing a visitor application.
- How to verify immigration consultant Brampton — position 2, up 2 places. This visibility corresponds to the local consultant-selection content. Verification guidance helps users distinguish professional credentials from marketing claims and supports the website’s broader trust story.
- PGWP eligibility Brampton graduates — position 4, up 10 places. The graduate guide targets a specific transition point from study to work. It gives the site a relevant entry page for Brampton graduates seeking to understand eligibility and next steps.
- Citizenship application Brampton checklist — position 5, up 95 places. The citizenship checklist responds to a high-intent procedural question and gives the content library a local route for applicants preparing an application.

How this helps the Brampton programme

Local search relevance grows when a site has useful answers for the situations its nearby customers actually face. The new articles address named Brampton questions across employer pathways, international study, work permits, family visits, permanent residence, citizenship and choosing an authorized representative. This creates more specific organic entry points than relying on one general location page to answer every immigration question.

The October keyword and backlink map assigns broad local commercial terms to the Brampton location page at /locations/brampton. That page is the primary destination for broad “immigration consultant Brampton” and service-led searches. Supporting articles answer narrower questions and provide contextual links to matching services, giving each page a clear role in the local search journey.

Google’s local ranking guidance highlights relevance, distance and prominence. Brampton-focused information strengthens the website’s local relevance, while the campaign tracks organic rankings and Google Business Profile visibility as complementary parts of local discovery.

3. Brampton content added in October

The October programme added 25 Brampton-focused guides on October 27 and one additional Brampton consultant-selection guide on October 29. Together, the 26 local-intent articles cover the main question groups connected to the office's service areas. The value of the cluster is its breadth and specificity: a student, employer, family member or applicant can enter through a question that matches their immediate need and then find a relevant next step.

Express Entry, OINP and employer questions

Seven guides serve skilled workers and employers considering federal or Ontario pathways. They address both applicant preparation and employer-side processes, so the local cluster can answer queries from more than one role in a hiring or nomination journey.

- Express Entry CRS Changes: Brampton Checklist for Nov 2026. Explains the upcoming CRS changes and gives candidates a local checklist for reviewing their profile and plans.
- Express Entry 2026 Categories for Brampton Workers. Summarizes category-based selection themes and the preparation questions workers should verify against current IRCC instructions.
- Low CRS Score in Brampton? Five Next Steps. Provides practical options for candidates assessing a lower score without implying that an invitation can be guaranteed.
- OINP Workforce Priority Stream 2026: Brampton Guide. Introduces Ontario's stream and directs readers to confirm which pathway and current eligibility requirements apply.
- OINP Employer Portal Checklist for Brampton Employers. Targets employer tasks and supports the strongest local ranking example in the October tracker.
- CEC Work Experience Proof for Brampton Applicants. Covers how Canadian Experience Class applicants can organize evidence of qualifying work experience.
- LMIA for Brampton Employers: 2026 Recruitment Checklist. Explains the employer-led recruitment and documentation context for a Labour Market Impact Assessment.

Study, work and student-life questions

Eight guides cover the student journey from choosing a programme through study-permit compliance, work eligibility and post-graduation planning. This group is locally useful because it connects immigration questions with decisions students and graduates make while living and studying in Brampton.

- 2026 Study Permit Rules: PAL/TAL Guide for Brampton Students. Helps students check whether a provincial or territorial attestation letter applies and what other application requirements remain.
- Change DLI in Canada: 2026 Checklist for Brampton Students. Explains the immigration steps students should verify before changing designated learning institutions.
- PGWP Eligibility 2026: Brampton Graduate Checklist. Sets out the eligibility-focused preparation topic reflected in the tracker's fourth-place result.
- Student Work Rules 2026: Brampton Hours and Co-op Guide. Addresses work-hour and co-op questions that affect study-permit compliance.
- Spouse Open Work Permit 2026: Brampton Eligibility Guide. Explains that eligibility depends on the principal applicant's pathway and current rules.
- PR After PGWP: Brampton Graduate Pathway Checklist. Connects post-graduation planning with the federal or provincial options a graduate may qualify for.
- Work Permit Expiry: Brampton Guide to Status and Restoration. Covers time-sensitive extension, maintained-status and restoration questions.
- Brampton International Student Housing and Status Checklist. Pairs local housing context with reminders to keep school and immigration records organized.

Family and visitor pathways

Five guides answer questions that often arise when a Brampton resident is preparing a visit or sponsorship plan with family members. The content is designed to help readers distinguish programmes and evidence requirements before choosing a course of action.

- Inland vs Outland Spousal Sponsorship in Brampton. Compares the two application contexts and identifies considerations around living arrangements, travel and status.
- Common-Law Sponsorship Evidence Checklist for Ontario. Focuses on the relationship evidence and cohabitation context applicants should review.
- Canada Visitor Invitation Letter: Brampton Host Checklist. Provides the practical host checklist associated with the campaign's second-place local query.
- Super Visa vs Visitor Visa for Brampton Parents. Explains the distinct purpose of a Super Visa and how it differs from a standard visitor visa.
- Visitor Visa Refusal 2026: Brampton Reapplication Checklist. Encourages applicants to understand the refusal reasons and supporting evidence before reapplying.

Permanent residence, citizenship and procedural issues

Three guides address long-term status obligations and a more complex procedural response. They give the site useful coverage beyond initial entry into Canada and support searches from people already living in the community.

- PR Card Renewal Brampton: 730-Day Residency Guide. Explains the residency-obligation topic relevant to permanent-resident card renewal planning.
- Citizenship Application Brampton: 1,095-Day Checklist. Organizes the physical-presence preparation topic corresponding to the fifth-place tracked query.
- Procedural Fairness Letter Response: Brampton Checklist. Addresses a serious response process where dates, evidence and the specific concern need careful attention.

Choosing an immigration professional

Three guides help readers understand representation, credentials and service terms. These topics also connect naturally to the public-register verification signal described later in this report.

- Immigration Consultant Cost in Ontario: Brampton Guide. Explains why fees vary by scope and why clients should confirm the written service agreement and deliverables.
- RCIC vs Immigration Lawyer in Ontario: Key Differences. Clarifies the different professional authorization routes and points readers to official verification.
- Top Immigration Consultants in Brampton: Guide. Published October 29, this local-selection guide emphasizes checking authorization, experience and service terms.

Publishing and live-page confirmation

During the review, public versions of the Brampton invitation-letter guide and the Brampton consultant-selection guide were confirmed, alongside the October Express Entry and OINP update. These examples confirm that October material is appearing on the public website. In November, Search Console and URL inspection checks will extend that review across the full new article batch and help prioritize pages for continued search visibility.

4. National immigration content added

Alongside the local cluster, October added 20 national guides that broaden the site's coverage of immigration pathways, status questions and programme comparisons. National resources can serve readers outside Brampton and establish a wider topical foundation. Their best local contribution comes when a reader's question naturally leads to an appropriate Ontario or Brampton service page, rather than through repeated location wording that does not fit the topic.

Provincial and regional pathways

Eight guides cover the Alberta Advantage Immigration Program, the Atlantic Immigration Program, the British Columbia Provincial Nominee Program, Manitoba skilled-worker options, the Francophone Community Immigration Pilot, Ontario programme updates, rural LMIA measures and LMIA wage thresholds. Together, they address a recurring research need: compare the place, stream, employer role and current intake criteria before deciding whether a provincial or regional path is realistic.

The employer-facing Atlantic and LMIA material extends the site's audience beyond applicants. Clear separation of employer obligations from a worker's immigration eligibility helps the content answer more precise questions and gives employers a relevant point of contact when professional support is needed.

Express Entry and permanent-residence planning

Four guides address Canadian Experience Class requirements, French-language category selection, proof of funds and Express Entry profile expiry. These topics sit at different stages of the same journey: assessing eligibility, understanding category-based invitations, documenting financial requirements where applicable, and keeping a profile usable. The coverage supports searches that call for a specific procedural answer instead of a generic "how to immigrate" overview.

Study, work and temporary status

Six guides cover designated learning institution changes, post-graduation work permit field-of-study rules, PAL/TAL exemptions, spousal open work permit eligibility, maintained status during an extension and restoration of status. These are time-sensitive decisions with consequences for a student's next step. The content therefore benefits from current official references and review whenever IRCC eligibility or instructions change.

Visitor and representative guidance

Two guides distinguish a visitor record from a temporary resident visa and explain how to verify an authorized representative. The distinction helps visitors understand the difference between permission to remain in Canada and a document used for travel. The representative guide supports the wider trust programme by directing readers toward official credential checks and away from guaranteed-outcome claims.

Additional October articles

The wider October inventory also includes "Express Entry and OINP Changes 2026: What to Do Before Nov 3," published October 28, which addresses a time-sensitive policy update. A national guide to immigration consulting firms was published October 29. The Brampton consultant-selection guide published the same day is counted in the 26 local articles above. With 20 national guides, 26 Brampton guides and these two additional national articles, the total October article inventory is 48 entries.

The topical range gives the website more opportunities to answer relevant informational searches and to establish helpful connections among related pages. The next step is to maintain the content: verify dates, official source links, eligibility details and internal links as policies evolve.

5. How October work supports SEO, AEO and GEO

Search engine optimization

The SEO programme combines page coverage, query targeting and site structure. The Brampton cluster was planned around distinct search intents, while the national content extends coverage across immigration pathways. That organization gives search engines more specific pages to evaluate and gives users a clearer route to an answer that matches their situation.

The October keyword and backlink map assigns broad service-led Brampton searches to the location page. Informational guides can then support that page through contextual links to relevant services and consultation options. This approach helps preserve a clear role for the commercial destination while allowing guide pages to rank for narrower questions. The team also applied internal blog-linking updates across the article library on October 29.

Title and section structures that make the subject clear, direct explanations near the relevant question, and references to current official guidance all contribute to a more usable search landing page. The 225-click and 18,400-impression Search Console totals show that organic discovery expanded at the site level in October; the tracked position examples show early local query visibility.

Answer engine optimization

Answer-oriented work focuses on making a page's response easy to identify, understand and verify. The October guides use question-led sections, direct answers and checklist formats for practical topics such as eligibility, documents, status changes and application preparation. This structure helps a reader scan the page and can make key information more extractable for answer features, provided the underlying information is accurate and current.

The content programme also includes supporting FAQs and source references in the article library. These elements make follow-up answers easier to scan and verify, and strengthen the site's readiness for featured answers and voice-search journeys. Google's Generative AI features report adds a measured visibility result for October alongside this implementation work.

Generative engine optimization

Generative search systems are more likely to rely on content that states who a rule applies to, what the rule means, what the reader should verify and where the information comes from. The editorial direction in October supports these qualities by organizing guidance around concrete questions and citing official sources. Professional identity information, including a visible RCIC number and a link to the regulator register, adds a verifiable context for immigration advice.

October's GEO work strengthened source-backed, extractable guidance and professional identity signals for AI-assisted discovery. Google Search Console's Generative AI features report adds a direct visibility measure for Google's AI-assisted search experiences.

Google AI search exposure

Google Search Console's Generative AI features report recorded 1.12K impressions in October, up from 441 in September: 679 additional impressions, or approximately 154% growth. Several relevant pages contributed to this broader AI-assisted search exposure. The Canada PR pathways guide rose from 51 to 126 impressions (+75), the Brampton immigration office page from six to 50 (+44), and the Canada immigration processing-times guide from 12 to 73 (+61). This positive Google Search signal complements the gains in regular search and demonstrates that the website's pages are appearing more often in Google's generative search experiences. The measure is impressions, so it is reported as exposure rather than AI citations or referral visits.

6. Authority, trust and technical signals

Semrush profile quality and site health

Semrush's November 2 Website Authority Overview recorded a Natural Profile score of 83/100 for commonwealthmigration.ca. Natural Profile is Semrush's link-profile quality indicator and provides a positive authority signal for this report. The result complements the October campaign's link-building work and organic search growth.

Semrush also reported Site Health of 96% from a crawl of 100 URLs on October 31. This provides a strong technical-health snapshot across the pages included in that crawl. Site Health is an audit score based on the tool's checks, not a direct statement that every page is error-free or that the score itself caused October ranking changes. It is a useful baseline for prioritizing site maintenance and comparing the next crawl.

October backlink activity

The October campaign activity log reports 115 backlinks created. This reflects work completed during the month and is an important part of the off-page authority-building programme. Relevant links can help search engines discover pages and provide external references to the site, while a natural, relevant profile is more durable than link volume alone.

The October campaign log records the 115-link creation total. It is tracked alongside independent Semrush link-profile indicators, with continued emphasis on topical relevance, placement quality and live status as the authority programme develops.

Professional verification

The College of Immigration and Citizenship Consultants public register listed Pankaj Khanna as a Regulated Canadian Immigration Consultant under College ID R711256 and showed the status "Eligible to Provide Service" when checked on November 2. The public register gives prospective clients a direct way to verify the professional associated with the service. IRCC's representative guidance also directs users to verify that paid immigration consultants are members of the CICC.

This is a client-trust signal and a useful part of the site's professional identity. It should be described as regulator-register verification, not as a search-engine authority metric. Keeping the consultant's identity, licence details and register link accurate and easy to find supports transparent decision-making for prospective clients.

Editorial authority development

An evidence-led article was submitted to the Refugee Law Initiative editorial team on October 26 and entered editorial review, with feedback expected by November 5. This expands the campaign's research-led outreach and creates an opportunity to strengthen professional visibility through a respected migration-research publication.

Content and technical care

The October 31 Semrush crawl provides a positive technical baseline across 100 URLs. In November, the team will build on the audit by prioritizing practical improvements, recrawling important routes and comparing the result with this October benchmark. Newly published immigration pages will also receive continuing checks for official references, effective dates, index status, internal links and professional review.

7. November work plan

November's work is designed to turn October's wider visibility and larger content base into a stronger, better-connected search experience. The focus is on relevance, accuracy, authority and measurement, with the same campaign settings retained wherever possible so month-over-month comparisons stay meaningful.

Strengthen the Brampton page network

We will review each Brampton guide and add or improve contextual links to /locations/brampton and to the most relevant service page. A reader researching a PGWP, an employer nomination or a visitor invitation should be able to move from the guide to a matching service without being pushed toward an unrelated offer. We will also check that broad Brampton commercial terms remain assigned to the location page in the keyword map.

Review and maintain October guidance

The October 27 Brampton batch will receive a named professional review, with reviewer attribution added only where that review has actually been completed and approved. The review will check that programme names, eligibility descriptions, dates, source links and calls to action remain current. Time-sensitive topics, especially policy changes and application-status guidance, will be prioritized for updates when official instructions change.

Build verifiable authority

The outreach programme will continue with relevant editorial and local opportunities. Each placement will be recorded only after it is published and checked for a live link. The existing 115-link October creation count will remain a separate campaign activity measure from the links independently discovered by Semrush or another crawler. Future reporting can then explain both the work completed and the quality of the resulting live profile.

Use the technical score as a baseline

We will review the Semrush audit output for the October 31 crawl, prioritize issues by effect on important pages and user experience, and run a follow-up crawl after implementation. The 96% Site Health result gives the team a clear positive baseline for this comparison. The report will state the crawl date and URL sample again so the client can distinguish a real trend from a change in crawl scope.

Measure local search and answer visibility

We will maintain the same Google Canada English SE Ranking configuration and review changes in Brampton rankings. Search Console will be used to inspect the local queries and landing pages receiving impressions and clicks, and to confirm the status of priority new pages. AI-search citations will be reported only where the platform or a repeatable tracking method provides verifiable evidence. This will keep the client's search report grounded in outcomes that can be checked.

Complete the editorial follow-up

The Refugee Law Initiative submission will be followed up after the expected November 5 feedback date. If the piece is accepted, the team will confirm the final published URL and any associated citation or link before including it as a completed authority result.

8. Measurement notes and closing summary

How to read the figures

Google Search Console clicks and impressions are website performance measures for October 1-31 compared with September 1-30, 2026. Clicks count organic visits from Google results; impressions count recorded appearances; CTR is the reported click-through rate. The Google Search Console Generative AI features report records impressions for Google AI-assisted Search features over the same comparison periods. These visibility results are read alongside the independent position tracker so reach and ranking coverage remain clear.

SE Ranking positions are from the configured Google Canada English tracking campaign for October 1-31. The top-three, top-10, top-30 and top-100 figures are ranking bands for the monitored set. The five Brampton phrases are selected examples from that set, showing progress across employer, visitor, study, citizenship and professional-verification intent.

Semrush Natural Profile and Site Health are tool-specific indicators. Natural Profile reached 83/100, while Site Health was 96% in the October 31 crawl of 100 URLs. CICC status was checked in the public register on November 2. The 115 backlink figure comes from October campaign reporting, and the 48-article inventory comes from the website content change record.

October in perspective

October brought together a 127% increase in Google organic clicks, a 79% rise in impressions, stronger CTR, more than doubled top-10 keyword coverage, five top-five Brampton visibility examples, 48 new article entries, and 115 campaign-reported backlinks created. Google's Generative AI features report recorded 1.12K impressions versus 441 in September, while Semrush's Natural Profile and Site Health results and the CICC public-register check add strong profile-quality, technical and professional-verification signals.

The next phase will compound this progress by connecting guides to Brampton services, keeping immigration information current, and continuing relevant authority work. Consistent measurement will make further gains visible and identify the search journeys that bring the most useful engagement.

We will use November to build on October's progress and report the results with the same clear separation between observed rankings, actual search performance, campaign activity and forward-looking work.
